Edgar Gonzalez has a Bachelor's from St. Mary's University and Master of Arts from UT San Antonio and is currently working on a doctorate from Our Lady of the Lake in Organizational Leadership. He spent his executive career as an administrator in planning and development for a nationwide laboratory serving 32 different states in family planning and state health agencies. He has also designed and developed proprietary laboratory software products for both physician operated laboratories and full service clinical laboratories.

Edgar's in-depth knowledge of the high-tech industry combined with his years of leadership experience enables him to address a wide range of audiences. His particular strength is the ability to quickly understand diverse cultures and industries. Incorporating his pre-existing knowledge into highly relevant educational focus consulting practices on change management, customer service, Meaningful Use Stages, work flow designs, and EHR vendor selection.

Education continues to be a large part of Edgar's core commitment to personal and community growth. That commitment to the growth of people, organizations, and communities has led to compassionate action by working with UT Health-Houston. This action allows him to intimately connect in early action with organizations he currently serves. Moreover, he decisively engages the upcoming healthcare changes through conversation, knowledge, and commitment to the growth of people in the service of the public good.
